

ANGELICA GRIM

Look For Me

Patuxent Music

BY DEBORAH WILBRINK

“Keep holding on to your dreams,” sings Californian Angelica on her debut album. The 19 year old has a clean, clear-cut voice, and she tackles some strong songs backed by the best. Runaway Ramp, The Letter, and surprisingly, Rubber Dolly, are up-tempo drivers. I Still Miss Someone, West Virginia My Home, and If I Needed You, are classics renewed by Angelica’s vocals. Old Calloused Hands is another righteously revived Hazel Dickens tune. Her voice seems effortless, never misses a beat; if there’s any grumbling to do, it’s that two-edged sword of being so very polished. But maybe she can’t help that, since she started singing in the parking lots at age nine! Angelica, we want to hear you more, and hear you let go! Meanwhile Look for Me should get many plays while we wait. BMP
